Project Type

Research Thinking Portfolio (e.g., HONR 463)

Which semester do you plan to register for the Research Thinking Portfolio course?

“Research Thinking Portfolio” is designed to bring together your research/creative experiences throughout your time at Purdue and to spark reflection on those experiences and how they contribute to your identity as a research thinker. As a member of the course, you will not only be reflecting on your history as a research thinker while a student at Purdue, but also taking a regular and active part in the overall research culture of the John Martinson Honors College.

Even though you may not yet be enrolled in “Research Thinking Portfolio,” please consider how you will invest yourself in the class. In 200 words or less, describe how you plan to invest in the class.

What interests, talents, knowledge, and/or skills will you bring to the course as you not only reflect on your own research thinking experiences but also take part in a community of inquiry made up of Honors College peers and faculty members?

Leadership Participation

If your scholarly project or research-based portfolio is being completed in conjunction with the Lead Forward and/or Leadership Praxis credential, please select the appropriate option below:
